Physical and Multi-sensory Teaching

Justin Moon

Abstract

This presentation looks at our number one teaching resource – the body. All language content is enhanced and made real in the classroom through the voice and body, and it is important that we develop our skills in order to create memorable moments, appeal to visual and kinaesthetic learners, and have fun in the classroom. Justin will demonstrate teaching particular language structures in a highly physical and visual way.

Biographies

Justin Moon is Master Teacher at Greenwich College and has been teaching for over 30 years. Happiest in the classroom, he is an experienced mentor who delights in sharing his experience with newer teachers. Justin's classes are communicative, collaborative, and person-centred.
